RATIO

RATIO was challenged with coordinating a master planning effort for The Children's Museum campus. This planning effort involved a diverse group, including museum management, staff, patrons, and the surrounding community. The plan was developed along a two-phase approach. The $30 million first phase was coordinated alongside a city street improvement project. This phase included the renovation of the existing OMNIMAX theater into an exciting new DinoSphere exhibit. RATIO managed and lead the collaboration of the design, specialty (e.g., exhibit, lighting), and engineering consultants. This phase also included a new entry experience for the DinoSphere exhibit and a parking garage with pedestrian bridge connector
